Explore Parodies with Natasha Wing!

A "parody" is a humorous imitation of a certain writing style or genre of writing. Natasha Wing is a children's book author who is famous for writing funny, rhyme-filled parodies about different holidays & family events.

Rich in vocabulary, relatable events, & fun rhymes, each of Wing's "Night Before..." tales is a parody of Clement C. Moore's "Twas The Night Before Christmas."

Learning Enrichment Suggestion:

Read Wing's "Night Before New Year's" & "Night Before Lunar New Year." ORDER HERE

Discuss the holidays & the stories. Talk about how the holidays are celebrated in the stories. Talk about how your family celebrates the new year & when. Ask your child if s/he would enjoy the activities described in the stories. Compare how the characters, setting, & events for each story are similar. Contrast how they are different. Create a Venn Diagram to show these similarities & differences!
