TIP #2: Offer Choices & Respect Preferences

Offer Choices & Respect Preferences It is important to ask children specifically about their preferences & offer choices. When you speak with your child, try to avoid being judgmental or quick to react; probe your child's curiosity & ask for more details or clarification. Often, younger children do not have the necessary vocabulary or emotional intelligence to explain things, being patient, non-reactive, & clarifying are crucial for fostering healthy parent-child bonds. Offering choices empowers children to explore their interests, curiosity, & preferences. It also helps them build confidence in decision making & reinforces the parent-child bond.

Providing high-quality, interactive resources from a variety of media & pertaining to different topics helps support whole-child growth. It also fosters curiosity & leads to more comprehensive thought processes. Visit the Learning Made Fun With Maestra Casiano Online Learning Hub to explore educational theories, resources, products, & ways to support your child's learning experience as a unique learner:

- Howard Gardener's Theory of Multiple Intelligences
- Dr. Maria Montessori's Theory focusing on children's innate curiosity
- Benjamin Bloom's Taxonomy of Learning focusing on cognitive skills
- The Whole Child Approach
- Executive Functioning
