Tip #7: Holiday Breaks Are Not Learning

TIP #7 Holiday Breaks Are Not Learning Breaks

Holiday breaks are great times to sleep in, relax, & play, but they are also FUN-tastic opportunities for family learning & exploration. By engaging in activities that stimulate creativity, curiosity, & discovery you can prevent learning loss & promote smooth transitions back to periods of formal education. You can find resources, links, & examples of engaging family activities on the Monthly Activities Page!

Here are suggestions to promote learning over breaks:

- Conduct at-home science experiments →
- Make winter-themed arts & crafts →
- Have a family game night →
- Explore different cultural holiday traditions →
- Involve kids in holiday cooking (math & science) →
- Set reading goals
- Write personalized holiday cards or thank you notes
